

The 11th Heaven is a No-No for Christians!

The following scriptures are often interpreted as a warning against altering scripture, adding human traditions or legalism, or diminishing God's authority.

Deuteronomy 4:2: "You shall not add to the word that I command you, nor take from it, that you may keep the commandments of the Lord your God that I command you".

Deuteronomy 12:32: "Everything that I command you, you shall be careful to do. You shall not add to it or take from it".

Proverbs 30:6: "Do not add to his words, lest he rebuke you and you be found a liar".

Many in the body of Christ have revealed that God has taken them to the 11th Heaven; a heaven that is not shown in the Bible and should be considered a false revelation within the body of Christ.

As Christians, it's not safe to desire such a thing due to the dark culture that it comes from, the Aztec culture that is considered to be apart of mythology.

Mythology is a collection of sacred or foundational stories that explain a culture's beliefs, values, and understanding of the world, often featuring gods, goddesses, and heroes. These stories answer fundamental questions about creation, the purpose of life, and the forces of nature, and they are typically considered true by the cultures that tell them.

Religion played a crucial role in Aztec life, with numerous gods and rituals, including human sacrifices to appease their deities.

The Aztec culture followed many false gods (over 200+). The Aztecs believe there are 13 heavens that false gods control. The false god "Xiuhtecuhtli" the god of fire, heat and turquoise resides in the 11th heaven.

He's also known as the "Turquoise Lord, who is often depicted wearing turquoise artifacts and is considered the creator of all life. The god of fire is also the patron of young warriors and rulers, symbolizing youth and vitality. His name translates to "Turquoise Lord," reflecting the precious stone's association with fire and life. He was considered to be the father of Gods, who dwelled in the turquoise enclosure in the center of the earth.

Xiuhcoatl, the Aztec turquoise serpent or fire serpent, is the spirit form of the fire god, Xiuhtecuhtli. Xiuhcoatl embodies this divine energy, appearing as a serpent with a sharply back-turned snout, segmented body, and a tail marked with the geometric symbol of the year and grass, connecting it to the dry season, solar cycle, and rebirth.

Role in Mythology and Combat

This false God, Xiuhtecuhtli was also called the North Star. This is significant towards what Lucifer said in his heart, shown in Isaiah 14.

Isaiah 14:12-15 ESV - "How you are fallen from heaven, O Day Star, son of Dawn! How you are cut down to the ground, you who laid the nations low! You said in your heart, 'I will ascend to heaven; above the stars of God I will set my throne on high; I will sit on the mount of assembly in the far reaches of the north; I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will make myself like the Most High.' But you are brought down to Sheol, to the far reaches of the pit."

The people of God can no longer accept revelations nor teachings outside of the word of God. False teachings and false revelations would have one turn away from following the truth of the Bible.

1 John 4:1- "Beloved, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God, for many false prophets have gone out into the world."

The below are scriptures that are considered warning and principles that should remind us to follow God in truth and in Spirit.

Proverbs 14:12 warns, "There is a way that appears to be right, but in the end it leads to death." This verse highlights the dangers of straying from the truth.

Romans 1:25 states, "They exchanged the truth about God for a lie, and worshiped and served created things rather than the Creator." This verse emphasizes the consequences of rejecting the truth.

2 Timothy 4:4 warns, "So they will turn their ears away from the truth and turn aside to myths." This verse indicates that turning away from truth can lead to a preference for myths and false teachings.

1 John 5:18 warns, "For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men who suppress the truth in unrighteousness." This verse highlights the spiritual consequences of ignoring truth.

Proverbs 28:4 advises, "If you forsake the law, you shall be forsaken." This verse serves as a reminder of the importance of adhering to the law and truth.

These verses and principles serve as a reminder of the serious nature of turning away from the truth and the potential consequences of such a decision.
